

Tough acts to follow Why European glory would set Ancelotti apart

Chelsea will demand a big improvement from Carlo Ancelotti on his league results in charge of AC Milan. The Italian averaged 2.04 points per league game after Roman Abramovich bought the West London club in 2003, a rate bettered by four of Chelsea's five managers in that time. However, having never been

European champions, Chelsea would settle happily for a repeat of Ancelotti's haul of two Champions League trophies with Milan in that six-year period

Abramovich era (2003-09): Carlo Ancelotti (at AC Milan) v Chelsea managers

