

SW19 in 60 seconds

Supporting cast

Cameras seemed curiously drawn to two glamorous supporters in the crowd during Andy Murray's victory on Centre Court. Quizzed on television, the player revealed that his blonde admirer was the present Miss Scotland (2009), Katharine Brown, who hails from Murray's home town of Dunblane and was coached as a junior by his mum, Judy. Alongside her was Nieve Jennings, a former Miss Scotland (2007). Just what Andy's girlfriend Kim Sears thought about it all is not recorded

Pregnant pause

She's back and looking lovely. Roger Federer's pregnant wife, Mirka, missed some of her husband's tennis last week because of ill health. But she was on Centre Court in the sunshine in a white dress and looking radiant yesterday as he defeated Ivo Karlovic, of Croatia, 6-3, 7-5, 7-6. The Fed is still not letting slip when the new arrival is due, but we think the happy day will be next month

Spice boy genius

He created the Spice Girls and turned David Beckham into an international superstar, but Simon Fuller was at Wimbledon yesterday to watch what could become his hottest property. Andy Murray signed up with Fuller's 19 Entertainment agency at the turn of the year – a stroke of genius for Fuller as Murray's career has soared. Fuller enjoyed every minute of his client's Centre Court performance from the comfort of the Royal Box

Crowds left reeling

The sounds of Scotland reach Wimbledon's long-suffering queuers. A band called Rock Salt & Nails, from the Shetland Isles, journeyed south to play the aptly named Volley Highway, their tribute single to Roger Federer. Er, not really. They are supporting Andy Murray, of course, and were out playing some Highland reels and other fiddley-dee-type music to the thousands lingering around the Wimbledon car parks yesterday morning

Tuning in

TV BBC Two: 1pm to 3.25pm; 5.50pm to 8pm. BBC One: 1.45pm to 6pm

Radio

5 Live (MW 693, 909 KHz): 12.30pm to 8pm

Rain or shine?

Staying hot and sunny although possibility of evening cloud

Maximum temperature 31C

Words Kevin Eason