

Zoned out?

Poor marking – rather than Liverpool's much-criticised zonal defensive system – led to Branislav Ivanovic's two headed goals for Chelsea from corners last night.

Xabi Alonso, of Liverpool, is tight to Ivanovic as the ball comes across, only to lose the Chelsea player, who heads Chelsea's equaliser

Steven Gerrard, the Liverpool captain, has his arms on Ivanovic as the ball approaches yet he still allows the Chelsea player to escape and plant an unchallenged header into the net.

While Liverpool used zonal defending overall, it is ironic that the Chelsea goalscorer was picked up before both goals

Words Bill Edgar

However, Liverpool's concession of two goals from corners was true to form

Greatest proportion of goals conceded at set-pieces in Premier League this season

