Gordon Brown has said people should respond to rising food prices by wasting less. What is your reaction to such advice?

He has a point; most households probably do waste too much	46	29	78	56	46	46	48	46	45	49	43	53	46	40	44	58	43

The Treasury admitted last week that 9 million motorists would be worse off as a result of increases in tax on cars that will affect vehicles dating back to 2001. Far fewer will benefit from a reduction in tax on the least-polluting cars.

From what you know what is your attitude to these changes?

It is right that drivers of cars with above-average fuel consumption, even of older cars, pay more to help the environment.	26	15	46	36	26	26	29	25	26	29	23	28	24	28	25	32	25

Police of Redruth in Cornwall have introduced curfews for children in order to stop anti-social behaviour in the town centre. Children under 10 must be off the streets by 8pm, and children under 16 by 9pm. Parents will be punished for infringements.

Would you support or oppose a policy to extend a curfew to towns and cities across Britain?
